

Spotlight on business, — Both teachers, learners

Homa Tindall, M.A.
Chairman, Business Division

Business characterizes the Business Division men and women as they prepare themselves for careers as managers, accountants, secretaries, sales experts, advertising specialists, and any number of other possibilities that the expanding world of commerce offers. The students bustle around in an environment of computers, calculators, duplicators, and electric typewriters, led by a competent corps of guides called instructors.

course in fashion merchandising for those interested in this type of career. The secretarial major has already been expanded so that students may prepare themselves in executive, medical, or legal areas of work.

Homa Tindall is the new chairman of the division. He directs a staff of six full-time, and a part-time instructor who has a law practice in the city. One business staff member, Betty Brecto, is president of the Minnesota Business Teachers Association.

Beginning with fall quarter, 1969, the division will offer a two-year
