

Kiehle library:

Books for reference and recreation, magazines and other periodicals on every subject from fruit growing to flying, and audio-visual equipment par excellence are all available in the college library. It's called the learning resources center — all you have to do is want to learn! Kiehle is also a haven for those who seek a place for quiet study or for solitary relaxation with a book or magazine or the home town newspaper. Harold Opgrand is the efficient, urbane supervisor of this cloistered area on the noisy campus.

Sister Sylvia, engrossed in research, didn't even know the photographer took her picture.

Dale Kuznia finds a magazine with the help of Dorothy Beauchene.
