

The friendly counseling of Mr. Bachmeier has helped many a Tech student solve a problem.

Mrs. Phillips and her warm smile gave this boy a boost.

Instructors maintain office hours dedicated to student guidance in studies. Mr. Peterson discusses a term paper with Gerald Helgeson.

Problems? never. These will help

Tech students soon learn that one never has to walk alone. If there is a problem that is confusing or troubling, there is also a faculty, friendly and helpful, to assist in its solution.

Marvin Bachmeier, M.S., is the college's full-time counselor, always on deck in his office in Selvig to advise and discuss school and personal problems. Mrs. Elizabeth Phillips is also available for consultation. Students need only make an appointment, and help is at hand.

If financial affairs are the bugbear, there is Dennis Hegle, who has the answers on financial aids and work study programs.

Studies causing you to lose sleep? With the twelve-to-one student-teacher ratio at UMC, there isn't a student who can't get special help in any subject, whether he is having trouble in it or merely wants to talk about his future. Each man and woman also has his own personal adviser, who is there to give registration assistance and advice in the major chosen. No, no one at Tech needs to walk alone.

Mr. Hegle is the man to see for financial aids and work study. Dennis Nelson is the person consulting him.
