

Don Martodam, huddle group leader, explains the fundamentals of campus life to Bob Clow, Tom Hughes, Jim Gettler, Mary Lou Steer, John Yates and Bill Leverington.

Days of howdydo, hi, and handshakes

Dean Sinn watches Dave Hoffman and Ken Schwanz fill out registration papers. In the background are Jerel Kilen and Greg Sprick.

"Fun and mosquitoes just don't mix," decided the freshmen as they battled their way through the swarming pests during Welcome Week, held September 18-22. In spite of these unwelcomed visitors the students enjoyed the social events which had been planned for them. After completing the final registration papers and paying their fees, the freshmen were introduced to the faculty at a luncheon held in the dining hall. Orientation sessions were conducted to explain the "rules of the game", and huddle groups offered the opportunity to become acquainted with fellow students. Activities during the week included a picnic, volleyball, games, and a campfire at Maple Lake, a picnic on Hill parking lot sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, a bonfire, pep rally, football game, and a dance. Visits in faculty homes also offered a chance to become acquainted with each other. When Monday finally arrived, the fun was over, and the work began.