

Arlen Hanson sights his target, with comments from Gary Lindquist and Fayne Wiegel.

Targetmasters Don Johnson, Adviser Chuck Averill, Arlen Hanson, Alan Roebke, Fayne Wiegel, and Gary Lindquist. Bottom: Showing off their trophies won at the state DECA meet are René Baron, Gary Nichols, Myron Cordes, Dan Beason, and Mary Lou Steer.

Organization men At work and play

The smart set joins organizations — but not too many. These people know that college is more than books and classes and running home every weekend. Participation in activities gives them new experiences and new friends. The Lettermen's Club is Tech's youngest; its purpose, obvious. Targetmasters is a group of gun enthusiasts, now chartered by the NRA, who will be in intercollegiate competition beginning in the fall. DECA is dedicated to business competency in marketing, management, and merchandising. The Girl Fridays, all secretarial majors, meet regularly to learn the poise, self-possession, and finesse necessary to be an employer's right hand woman.

Charter members of the Lettermen's Club are (standing): Roger Donnay, Frank Magdziarz, Paul Aakre, Jim LeClair, Dan Motschenbacher, Chuck Gust, and Jim Dillman. Seated are Doug Hand, Pete Novotny, Dennis Nelson, Dwight Aakre, and Rich Wehking.

