

Important people In the household

Most students learn to know the civil service personnel, those indispensable people known for their expertise in the departments in which they work. Though there are too many to picture here, the Trojan salutes them all for their skill and helpfulness. They include grounds keepers, cooks, clerks, bookkeepers, secretaries, and mechanics. Some work at keeping the buildings attractive and clean; others, at giving us warmth and light. Still others are in charge of the school's farm buildings and operations. With the exception of Robertson Hall, women's residence, the dormitories are supervised by older male students and their wives. The "house" is owned and in charge of Keith Ramberg.

"Good morning. University of Minnesota." Judy Wertish's friendly greeting at the information desk and switchboard in Selvig makes every day a good day.

Mary Amiot is the efficient secretary in the Ag Division. Below, Charles Averill is the popular campus policeman.

Doris Matzke and JoAnn Palmer are secretaries in the Admissions and Financial Aids department.
