

Frosh Mature Fast

Freshmen have to grow up fast in a two-year college, emerging as they do from strangers adrift in a new world in their first quarter to prospective graduating class status by the end of their third. This year's frosh, the largest entering group in the school's four-year history, have approached adulthood quickly and with unusual poise. Many have turned into strong leaders, unafraid to express opinions, study hard, and work for school solidarity and betterment. Some have excelled in sports, major and intramural, and freshmen have taken over the editor's and business manager's posts on the college paper. Of course, men still outnumber the gals!

Jim Wiese finds the library's the place for study.

CHRISTI ANDERSON, St. Vincent; GREGORY ANDERSON, Minneapolis; THOMAS ASKEGAARD, Comstock.

JODY ASLAGSON, Starbuck; MICHAEL BOURQUE, Brooks; JUDY BRANDWICK, Crookston.