

Arctic Red River Valley breezes didn't freeze the ardor of the crowd.

On Some Scorpio Homecoming Revelry

Master of Ceremonies Lloyd Mayes captivated the audience at the coronation with his wit.

November 1, final day of Homecoming 1969, was cold and brrrrr, but the atmosphere around the campus was warm and cheerful. Shivering fans had their hearts heated to a July temp as they watched their Trojans swamp the North Hennepin Norsemen, 35-0.

Homecoming hullabaloo began on Wednesday evening with a hay ride at seven that took a large crowd over the prairies and far away. There were the usual spills and gaiety. More fun came on Thursday night when everyone went out to the Central athletic field for powder puff and Vets-Faculty competition in football. The Tech gals beat those from Corbett, and the men from academe trimmed the war heroes. Friday's excitement included the Homecoming feast and the coronation of Queen Shelley in Bede Hall. By that time there were enough alumni back to make the affair a real coming-home day.

Before the game Saturday a caravan of cars and enthusiasts, preceded by the Vets' color guard, rolled through town and out to the playing field. That night a large crowd dressed in their best bobbed to the music of the "Shades of Soul."
