

Club Activities

What's great about belonging to a club is that snug feeling of being associated with others who have the same enthusiasms. Flyers have an affinity for other airbound people; ecologists for other environmental reformers. Tech's organizations pretty well fall into various interest categories depending on the division in which the student has his major work. On the other hand, there are some that cater to hobbies, like Targetmasters, or concentrate on political philosophy, like the Young Democrats. The important thing in college is to find a group that you like and work with it. Participation develops you, your horizons, and your circle of good friends.

The Flying Trojans, Inc. are Tech's aviation fanatics. Seated are adviser Larry Leake, adviser Ed Johnshoy, Al Vouk, Mabel Heller, Ted Riendeau. Standing are Harvey Lambert, Marvin Housman, John Siebert.

Concerned with the preservation of the environment, the Conservation Club is one of UMC's newest. Members are Charles Berdan, Bob Hawkins, Richard Heller. SEATED. STANDING ARE Jerry Hauge, John Gunvalson, Randy Senst, George Ness, Ron Cortese.

The collegiate FFA (ABOVE) is one of Tech's largest clubs. ROW 1: James McDonald, Dean Johnson, Dennis Kuehn, Curt Swanson, Hillary Benjamin. ROW 2: Nathan Redland, Steve Gorentz, Mike Granlund, Dan Twamley. ROW 3: Jim Krych, Paul Donner, Richard Nistler, Bill Smith, James Gondringer. ROW 4: Bernard Koltes, Ted Eifealdt, Larry Bossen. BELOW: Under the direction of adviser Peter Fog, the Collegiate Toastmasters are an active group. Seated are Tom Schiltgen, Bill Jamison, Stephen Hottinger. Standing are Hillary Benjamin, John Siebert, John Benesh, Neal Wolfe, Thomas Stene, Dan Twanley, James McDonald.

