Views of two of the modern laboratories in science and typing.

Dedicated at ceremonies February 6, Dowell Hall is a three-story, fully-equipped classroom building which houses business, HRI, science, and other academic classes. The 42,000 square-foot structure, occupied for the first time at the beginning of winter quarter, was built at a cost of 1.5 million dollars. In the picture above Dr. Austin Dowell is shown inspecting the building's plaque with Pres. Malcolm Moos, Associate Vice-Pres. Stanley Kegler, Myron Cordes, alumni president, and Darrell Larsen, Student Senate head.
